2. All questions carry equal marks.

Question 1

'Green theory in international relations is a sub-field of international relations theory which concerns international environmental cooperation.' Discuss the theory in relationship to food security in developing countries.

Question 2

To what extent has the top-down, one-size fits all approach coupled with strict regulation of markets for key food crops contributed to food security crisis in Africa.

Question 3

Examine the Stakeholder Management and Sustainable Food Access approach in your country.

Question 4

'In most of African countries, the neglect of urban food security in research has largely been due to the traditional conceptualisation of the urban area as a more developed homogeneous geographic area that has no economic differentiation among its citizens.' Discuss.

Question 5

Explore the impact of indigenous knowledge systems on food and livelihood security in Africa.
